MAKE YOUR WARDROBE READY FOR PIONEER FETE IN OCTOBER; ALL TO DRESS IN "YE OLDE DAYS"

Plans Unfold Novel Ideas

The committee-at-large of the coming gala week, when the whole town will take up the spirit of the "Old Days," meet Friday evening to make the many, many arrangements necessary. P. L. Bonebrake, general chairman presiding. The program committee which was announced last week was divided into specific groups, much augmenting the scope of the undertaking. The Boys' and Girls' committee will be headed by Mrs. Thos. Robertson, Henry Korsmeier, George Kyle, Mrs. Walter Nolac, Mrs. Alice Floyd and Don Parker. Teen-age committee, chairman, Russell Lovejoy, Gwen Dewey, Mrs. Laura Morgan, Jack Butler, Mrs. Gleam Drury and Mrs. Carl Hansen. The adult group chairman is Francis Eakman, with Mrs. A. Adams, Tom Henderson, John Chambers, J. Porter Byrne, Joe Russell, Mrs. F. Adams and Mrs. Clifford Ward.

EVERYONE TO DRESS FOR THE OCCASION

Program chairman, Thomas Durning , has asked that every boy, girl, man and woman in the city dress during the week in appropriate pioneer outfits. It will be a week of Good Times.

Dr. A. O. Pritchard will furnish, through the Historical society, the real Pioneers of Sierra Madre. He will be the source of interesting early history.

Chairman Bonebrake says it is his aim to have every interest, every age, every organization in the city fused into a working unit. He is aiming to make this Sierra Madre affair such a success that it will become a yearly tradition of the city, placing Sierra Madre where it belongs among many of California's oustanding traditional communities.

Capt. O'Banion Started First Philippine School

Capt. A. E. O'Banion helped to establish the first school in the Philippines after taking the island in 1898. It was from those schools started by the Army which were later taken over by regular teachers that the natives were taught to live our way of civilization.

Capt. O'Banion arrived on Luzon with the 4th U.S. Cavalry when the firing line had extended 60 miles beyond Manila. He said they trained their horses on the shore of Manila Bay in sight of the sunken Spanish fleet whose spires pierced the water like telephone poles. Capt. O'Banion served under Gen. Fred Funston who captured the president of the island by a strategy which will be another story.

P. L. Bonebrake, chairman of "The Pioneer Days" observance, was in El Monte Wednesday afternoon obtaining data on the Pioneer Days of the 1895's held at El Monte, Saturday and Sunday, June 16-17, and reports that he never received such co-operation from anyone at home or abroad.

VETERANS' CORNER

EDITOR'S NOTE—This portion of the paper will be devoted to information for service men returning to civilian life. We suggest clipping this material each week and keeping it for the man in your family who will eventually return.

Vocational Rehabilitation

1. The Veterans' Administration provides vocational training for honorably discharged veterans who served in the active military or Naval forces on or after September 16, 1940, and prior to the termination of hostilities in the present war who have disability incurred in or aggravated by service for which pension is payable and are in need of vocational training to overcome the handicap of such disability. Eligibility for this training is determined at the time the veteran's claim for pension is adjudicaed by the Veterans' Administration. During authorized training, pension is payable at the rate of $80 per month to a single man and $90 per month to a married man with an added allotment of $5 per month for each dependent child and $10 per month for each dependent parent. No course of training in excess of four years can be approved, nor can training be provided beyond six years after the end of the present war.

2. Vocational training is offered by the State Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation to veterans who do not have a service connected disability if a vocational handicap through non-service connected disability exists.

She will continue training as a typist at another post until she receives her overseas assignment. Miss Vieira loves her work of which there is a plenty, attending classes from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. She is very proud of the fact that her company has won all the banners during the six weeks' basic. She is hoping to have another look at good old Sierra Madre before going across.

Where Can You Go Now on 100 Gallons of Gas?

We have had many splendid suggesions as to where one might go for a vacation or outing on five gallons of gas. But now that we can drive in and say, "Fill 'er up," we had forgotten the tires can't take much any more. They are thin and unsafe. A long trip on hot pavements is out. O, well, we have a clear conscience, we didn't use a gallon we weren't entitled to. We can look the boy in the eye when he comes home and tell him the rationing wasn't too bad.

War Changes in Southland Industry are Upon Us.

Surveying far-reaching changes wrought by war, Southland War Production Board officials today pictured Southern California as equipped with the tools for a peacetime production job of giant proportions. They backed up their assertions with figures showing how this area swiftly became second largest industrial center of the nation with nearly $13,500,000,000 in war contracts and an $800,000,000 mushrooming of its plant investment.

Tribute to the creative energy and enthusiasm of war workers and industry leaders alike has given the tools for a new and greater peace-time part in the nation's industrial future.

LT. MILTON BLAKEMAN MILITARY RITES HELD IN CHENGTU, CHINA

Letters received by Mrs. Katherine Blakeman from Maj. Calvin E. McWilliams, Commanding Officer of the 21st Photographic Reconnaisance Squadron, and Maj. Gen. C. L. Chennault relative to the fatal accident in which her husband, Lt. Milton R. Blakeman lost his life, will be much appreciated by his many friends. One letter gives the details of the accident as much as ever will be known, but both are an eulogy to a brave soldier. The letters read in part:

"Milton had been with us only a short time, but many got to know him because he took an active interest both in his work and other activities of the squadron. At the time of the accident he had flown eight combat missions, and they were all good missions. He was picked to be operations officer at a new flight being formed.

"Your husband was 'slow timing' an aircraft at the time of the accident. I can assure you that he passed away instantly with no pain. The actual reason for the accident is unknown, and the airplane had crashed into the side of a mountain about 15 miles northwest of Hanchung, China. A rescue party was immediately dispatched to the scene of the crash.

"Milton was buried with full military rites and ceremony at Chengtu, China. A Protestant chaplain officiated and the officers and enlisted men from this organization formed the Guard of Honor.

"Your husband was a good soldier, and a fine officer. He left us doing his duty, and his loss will be felt by the organization. You should take comfort in the fact that he has given his life for a purpose. The Air Forces have lost a valuable man in fighting for the cause of freedom.

MAJ. McWILLIAMS."

"The many friends and comrades of your husband share your sense of loss, for they too have lost a loyal friend. They are proud of his fine record and the splendid way he obeyed the command of duty and conscience. His fine personal traits made him a favorite among all who knew him. We will always remember him with pride and affection.

MAJ. GEN. CHENNAULT."

Dr. Pritchard Tells Kiwanis Early Sierra Madre Lore

Sierra Madre was the first city established east of Pasadena in the San Gabriel valley, according to Arthur Pritchard, member of the Sierra Madre Historical society, who spoke at the Kiwanis club at Tuesday's meeting.

Alhambra, Arcadia and Monrovia came later. The only important growth then was the large oak trees which everyone treasures today.

Mr. Carter bought the original land from Lucky Baldwin and divided it into 40-acre lots. Much interesting data has been collected which makes the subject most fascinating.

"HOW TO REMEMBER NAMES AND FACES"

P. R. Penn of the Safeway Store will be program chairman of the Kiwanis luncheon next Tuesday. Mr. Penn has secured the memory expert, David Roth of Los Angeles, to address the club. He will give his famous talk, "How to Remember Names and Faces."

Kiwanis to Give Peace-Time Service

Plan for All-Out Ways and Means

Seeking to speed reconversion and aid returning veterans, Kiwanis International today announced nine far-reaching post-war objectives as the Kiwanis Club of Sierra Madre considered ways and means of rendering greater community service in peacetime.

In a special message to 2300 clubs throughout the United States and Canada, Hamilton Holt, Macon, Ga., presiden of Kiwanis International, declared that 149,000 Kiwanians "will not shrink from the problems of reconversion that lie ahead."

Holt told President Truman and Prime Minister King of Canada in telegrams read to the local club that Kiwanis International would lend its wholehearted cooperation in meeting and solving the problems of post-war reconstruction.

"Since Dunkirk and Pearl Harbor," he said, "Kiwanis manpower has been marshalled behind the Allied war effort. These resources now will be directed toward the building of peace, unity and opportunity."

Eugene Lunsford, president of the Kiwanis club of Sierra Madre, said that Kiwanis International's post-war objectives had the unanimous endorsement of Kiwanians here. He revealed that the service organization's theme would be "Build for Peace—Unity—Opportunity."

The nine objectives follow:

1. Develop an understanding of the United Nations Charter in support of world peace.
2. Aid returning veterans.
3. Encourage sound programs of reconversion.
4. Strengthen democracy by personal acceptance of citizenship responsibilities.
5. Expand youth services to build character and citizenship.
6. Mobilize public opinion in support of individual enterprise and opportunity.
7. Conserve natural resources.
8. Further good will between Canada and the United States as an outstanding example of international co-operation.
9. Develop national unity through increased emphasis on human and spiritual values.

Son from Pacific Arrives Too Late for Father's Rites

The Jacob Arthur Van Meter funeral services were held at the Grant chapel yesterday at 11 a.m. Mr. Van Meter passed away at his home, 70 W. Highland, August 9. Entombment was at Sunnyside Mausoleum at Long Beach. Wm. Edward Van Meter, PM, U.S. Navy, stationed in the Pacific, is expected to arrive in the city next Sunday.

Miss Margaret Cox left Friday for Washington, D.C., where she is to take a four-week orientation course before reporting at Bogata, Columbia. She will fly from Miami, Fla., to South America. Miss Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Cox, 269 E. Laurel, graduated in February at U.C.L.A., majoring in languages, and has accepted a position as a military attache in the foreign service.

RED CROSS OFFICIAL ASKS PUBLIC TO "STAY ON THE JOB"

"Stay on the job," is the official word at headquarters of the Sierra Madre chapter of the American Red Cross, said R. C. Lewis, chapter chairman, when asked today what the chapter's immediate post-war plans are.

"V-J Day is here," Mr. Lewis said, "but we are making an urgent appeal to all our people to 'stay on the job,' because the services and assistance of the Red Cross are going to be needed now just as much as ever, particularly by the thousands of our fighting men in the occupied areas and in the military and veterans' hospitals."

Mr. Lewis stated that the wartime efforts of the leaders and workers of the Sierra Madre chapter were highly commended in a letter just received from Verne Simmons, manager of the American Red Cross Pacific Area headquarters in San Francisco.

"The activities of your chapter and its loyal volunteers," the letter reads in part, "has been a constant and vital part of the many nationwide undertakings of our organization. It is our hope that each of you who have assisted so magnificently throughout the war will stay on the job now, and during the difficilt period that lies ahead. As the representatives of the American Red Cross in your community, your continued activity will be a great contribution to the future strength of our organization and of the American people."

Mr. Simmons also pointed out the immediate need for 3000 additional paid social workers, recreation workers and non-professional hospital workers in military hospitals. Military authorities have called on the Red Cross to furnish these workers and the job of recruiting them is now being pushed with all possible speed.

CHARLINE STANSBURY SLATED FOR METROPOLITAN; WILL AID MUSICAL CAREER WITH SEPTEMBER CONCERT

Civic Club Sponsors School Auditorium

Miss Charline Stansbury, talented young mezzo-soprano, will be sponsored by the Sierra Madre Civic club in a benefit recital Friday evening, September 7.

Miss Stansbury has been encouraged by Rise Stevens, famed Metropolitan star, who writes, "The recordings of Charline Stansbury's voice reached me safely. I listened to the records with a great deal of interest and agree with you it is a lovely voice. If Charline is prepared to work conscientiously, there is no reason, as far as I can judge from the recordings, why she should not be able to make singing her career." For the past six years Miss Stansbury has been studying under Mrs. Grace McCarty who is now placing her pupil with Madam Vera Schwarz, teacher of Miss Stevens, for three months' finishing work.

Miss Stansbury has given freely of her talent and will be remembered for her concerts in behalf of the Red Cross and U.S.O., Army hospitals and Olive View Sanitarium. The Civic club feels privileged to aid in furthering the career of a young artist and offers this opportunity to the community to show is gratitude for her generosiy in the past.

Miss Stansbury has been earnest in her musical study and is now ready for the finishing work that will be the last step toward a Metropolitan audition. Financial aid will make it possible for her to enter the Julliard College of Music in New York where she will obtain the background so necessary for a Metropolitan career.

CHARLINE STANSBURY

Miss Stansbury's recital will be held at the auditorium of the Sierra Madre Elementary school and is under the arrangement of Mmes. James Dewey Jr. and Alan Thompson. She will be accompanied by Gustave Riherd at the piano.

All proceeds derived from the concert will be presented to Miss Stansbury by the Civiv club for her use in the furtherance of a musical career.

NO APPLICATIONS IN FEDERAL SERVICE EXCEPT TO VETERANS

Until further notice the United States Civil Service Commission will not receive any applications for employment in the Federal service except from those veterans who have the right to have examinations reopened for them.

The Commission has taken this step, according to a statement issued today, in order to make sure that any vacancies which develop in the Federal service will be filled either by returning veterans or by persons who are about to be or have been separated from other positions in the Federal service.

"The Federal government as an employer," stated the Commission, "must set the example in providing the members of the armed forces who are coming through our separation centers today with the maximum possible opportunities for employment.

"Also, the Federal government is determined not to put itself in a position where it is discharging persons in one part of the Federal service and, at the same time, hiring persons from the outside to fill similar positions in another part of the Federal service."

"All of our resources," the Commission pointed out, "must be available for the orderly handling of reductions in force, the prompt transfer of persons who are laid off to other agencies which may be looking for persons with their qualifications, and for the administration of the Veterans' Preference Act of 1944."

The Frog TALKS about ROBERTS MARKET and Things!

LEST WE FORGET!

WOMAN!

When pain and anguish wring the brow,
A ministering angel—thou!
—Scott.

IN OUR EXUBERANCE of celebrating the end of the War, let us pause and pay tribute to the sick and wounded in hospitals all over the land, who made this great day possible for us. For them the fight has just begun. Years of suffering and adjustments lie ahead.

THOSE WHO RETURN mentally and physically fit will soon find their places in the normal routine of life.

TO THE DOCTORS AND NURSES who are making sacrifices that these patients may have the BEST care obtainable, we also pay tribute!

THE BOTTOM: We seem to have hit bottom so far as food supplies are concerned. Improvements will be slow!

OUR NEW SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE made a lot of sense recently when he stated: "America cannot feed the world. The people are entitled to know how much food there is in this country, where it is and where it is going. In case of shortage they are entitled to know whether or not the shortage occurs from the failure of Nature, or a so-called Act of God, or from official negligence or stupidity."

PAPER GOODS promises to be more plentiful in the near future, praises be!

CURLY SAYS to tell you we have EGGS! We were fortunate enuf to make a direct connection with a rancher!

THERE ARE NO canned pears or pineapple available at present—BUT fresh pears are very nice and easily canned, if you have sugar. MOM has always preferred Lake County Bartlet Pears for canning. They should be just at the turning-yellow stage; then they do not get soft and mushy when canned. Pare, halve, drop in a simple syrup and bring to a good boil. Then place them in sterilized jars and seal—EASY, eh, what!

MOM SAYS THAT when she cans pears she enjoys putting the Red food coloring in one lot of syrup—canning about four pints at a time—and GREEN coloring in another. These make attractive holiday salads.

HOME, SWEET HOME!

If solid happiness we prize,
Within our breast this jewel lies,
And they are fools who roam.
This world has nothing to bestow;
From our own selves our joy must flow,
And that dear hut—our home.
—Nathaniel Cotton.

Still, I hope, One Jump Ahead.

Army Bride Makes a Dressing Gown From Parachute to Save for Bonds

Made from a nylon parachute, this zephyr-light negligee retains the original parachute stitching in its graceful skirt. Wide bands of white lace trim the full bodice fronts. Narrow lace ruffling defines the yoke, sleeve tops and cuffs. An Army bride won a first prize in a national sewing contest with this dressing gown. Making lingerie saves money for War Bonds. *U. S. Bring Your Own Picnic

DON'T take a defeatest attitude on the subject of picnics just because you can't throw everything in the car and be off as in the good old days. Carry your lunch or supper to some nearby picnic spot and you will have a good time in spite of rationing and shortages. Include a thermos or two of iced coffee in the picnic basket for everyone is sure to be tired and thirsty by the time you reach your destination. And don't forget some cookies either . . . they always go over in a big way.

As long as you can find the makings of a sandwich you can have a picnic. Let everyone bring his or her share of rationed foods and then make for a nearby picnic spot. Take along some refreshing iced coffee in a thermos and plenty of these Latin-American cookies. They are coffee-flavored and filled with bits of chocolate . . . a delectable combination that melts in your mouth. They keep well, too, so are the perfect sweet for picnic baskets and lunch boxes. Here is the recipe for Latin-American cookies. It's tested, of course.

Latin-American Cookies

1½ cups all-purpose flour, sifted	1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking powder	½ cup shortening
½ teaspoon baking soda	½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt	½ cup molasses
½ teaspoon nutmeg	⅓ cup double strength cold coffee
¼ teaspoon ginger	1 package chocolate bits or chips

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, soda, salt and spices. Cream shortening with the sugar. Mix molasses and coffee and add alternately with the flour mixture. Stir in chocolate bits or chips and drop by teaspoon or tablespoon on greased cookie sheets. Bake in moderately hot oven (375° F.) 10 to 15 minutes. Yield: 1½ dozen large or 3 dozen small cookies.

WARTIME HOMEMAKER

FISH—HOW TO CHOOSE AND USE IT

By the HOMEMAKING SPECIALISTS of the General Electric Consumers Institute

Today fish is the important meal on your table owing to meat shortage and your meagre supply of red points. Luckily, fish is a nutritious alternate to meat and poultry, and since there are such modern refrigerated shipping facilities available, this grand food is available in all parts of the country.

Familiarize yourself with the kinds of fish your market sells. When buying, apply these rules endorsed by experts at the General Electric Consumers Institute. To identify good fish, be sure that:

Fish eyes are bright and bulging
Gills are bright red
Flesh is firm and shows no imprint when handled
Scales adhere tightly to the skin
No slime is present

Frozen Fish

Are cleaned, usually filleted, ready for table use. Are just as FRESH as "fresh" fish and may be prepared in the same way. Allow fish to thaw until pieces may be easily separated, then cook the same as fresh fish.

Salted and Smoked

Firm, coarse-fleshed fish such as cod, hake, haddock are "dry salted" by packing in dry salt. Fat, oily fish such as finnan haddie is "salted" in brine and frequently smoked. No further cooking is usually necessary with smoked fish, but salted fish must first be washed to remove the salt on the surface, then soaked in cold water for 2 to 12 hours with the skin side up. If the fish is very salty change the water several times.

Fish "In the Round"

If bones, head and tail are included when you buy fish, 1 pound serves 2 people after cleaning and scaling.

SUMMER SEASON FISH include sea bass, bluefish, butterfish, salmon, sturgeon, swordfish, trout, whitefish, and whiting.

YEAR-ROUND FISH are carp, catfish, clams, cod, crabs, eel, flounder, grouper, haddock, hake, halibut, herring, lobster, mackeral, mullet, perch, pickerel, pike, and red snapper.

Fish for Picnics

If you can't get frankfurters, serve delicious salmon sandwiches! Break 1 pound of cooked or canned salmon into large pieces and combine it with the following: 1 cup sliced celery, ½ cup chopped cabbage, ½ cup sweet pickle relish, ½ tsp. salt, dash of pepper,, 1 tbsp. prepared horseradish, 1 tbsp. minced onion, 1½ cups salad dressing. Serve this filling on frankfurter buns. NO BUTTER NEEDED!

Fish for Bridge Luncheon

Serve tuna baked on sea food shells when you next entertain at luncheon. To serve four, melt 1 tbsp. margarine and blend with it 1 tbsp. flour. To this add 1 cup milk and a sprinkling of salt, pepper, paprika, and 1 bay leaf.

Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Remove the bay leaf and add: one 7-ounce can flaked tuna, ½ cup bread crumbs, 2 hard-cooked chopped eggs, 3 tbsp. lemon juice, 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce. Fill sea food baking shells; sprinkle with bread crumbs, and 4 tbsp. grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes,

City Marshal Caley was directed to enforce compliance with the terms of the ordinance requiring fire extinguishers and water standpipes in hotels and public buildings.

J. H. Wright reported complaints having been made of the noise caused by the exhausts of certain gasoline engines and asked that mufflers be placed upon them.

Ordinances were published for the intention of improving Baldwin and Mountain Trail Aves. between Central Ave. and Mira Monte by grading to the official grade and grading with natural soil, then oiling. Also to construct cement curbs, 3½-foot gutters and cement swales and pipe culverts.

Planting of Cocoa Palms is proposed by W. R. Humphries at the Chamber of Commerce meeting Monday night. The plan would make the business section striking and picturesque.

The Park Dance program under auspices of the Legion and Auxiliary is to continue until the beginning of the school term. The hosts and hostesses for last Friday night's dance were P. Lass, Mrs. Leila Embree, Mrs. Dollie Hill and Mrs. Louise Roe with Mr. and Mrs. George P. Rikeman donating the prize for the evening.

A series of one and two-act plays will be produced in Sierra Madre at once, it was decided by the Community Players at a meeting held at the home of Mrs. C. A. Allen Thursday night.

Montecito is finally to be improved from Lima St. to Sunnyside Ave. After a long struggle the city has acquired possession of two strips of land a half block in length which will make this possible.

"We expect very pleasant weather for the weekend," said Col. H. B. Hersey. "There will be no fog, the high-pressure area has passed this part of the coast. Variable winds will make the weekend pleasant, and we may expect moderate temperature."

Miss Clara Sykes and Mrs. Laura M. Cline are stopping at the Dodge Hotel, Washington, D.C.

Members of the board of directors of the Woman's club were entertained Thursday at the summer home of the president, Mrs. E. E. Bacon. By H. F. Noake

Dear Professor:
Went to a Hungarian restaurant and had a concoction something of about the same consistency as rubber. What do you suppose they served me?
Ans.: Sounds like Hungarian goulash.

Dear Professor:
Have just graduated from a swank finishing school. Am now anxious to travel around in the best circles. How shall I go about it?
Ans.: You can't beat a good skating rink.

Dear Professor:
I consider myself a supersalesman. I can sell anythting. What would be a good line to really test my ability?
Ans.: Try selling buggy whips.

Dear Professor:
I'm a chronic meat eater, especially steaks. What do you get mostly at home in the meat line?
Ans.: Plenty of cold shoulder and tongue.

Dear Professor:
Our country is blessed with many beautiful birds. Which do you consider the most popular?
Ans.: The stork.

AROUND AND ABOUT

By EDWARD LLOYD VOORHEES

THE COUNTRY OF PETRARCH—II. The parks and gardens of Avignon are so spacious that even today they stimulate the imagination of the traveler to revert to that far-off time when for nearly 70 years they were the pattern of approach to a cluster of Gothic stone buildings which housed the acknowledged center of the Christian world. How those winding wooded walks and floral mazes must have flashed with the gleam of armor and tossing plumes of knights, the silks and velvets of court ladies, and the red, yellow, and purple—or somber black—of Papal dignitaries, and the white, gray, or brown habits of monastic orders. Today at the northern edge of the city one comes upon the high, rocky plateau overlooking the Rhone far below and its suspension bridge to the quaint town of Villeneuve-les-Avignon. Upon this rocky plateau, near the public garden, one is impressed by the solid Romanesque lines of the 12th century cathedral of Notre-Dame des Doms, a gilded statue of the Virgin crowning its western tower, while within the cathedral, among the many works of art, the chief magnet for the modern eye is the magnificent carving on the 14th century Gothic mausoleum of Pope John XXII. One reflects in passing how a durable monument, because it is a reminder to successive generations, can in itself perpetuate at least a name.

But Pope John XXII has another monument. For near the cathedral rise the clustered Gothic buildings of the Palace of the Popes, started by him in 1316. The group resembles more a fortress than a palace, and doubtless with good reason, for it had to be both in those early days of rivalries between "protectors" and patrons of a Papacy which was soon to have for a time two "antipopes" at Avignon, Clement VII and Benedict XIII, after Gregory XI had gone back to Rome—and finally, in 1409, there were three popes—Gregory XII, Benedict XIII, and Alexander V—all protesting their own legitimacy at the same time, and each recognized by a different group of countries. These great buildings cover a total area of over an acre, and after long usage as barracks and as prisons after the return of the Papacy to Rome, are now municipal property and are being "restored" as national monuments to something of their original character, that of severe and dignified fortress-residences.

Avignon was not always the peaceful city one finds today. For about three centuries several kings of France tried to acquire the city as part of their dominions, but the papal legates held it firmly for the Papacy, until 1791, when it was finally gathered in by the French National Assembly after some bloody scenes like those which went on all over France during the Reign of Terror. Today—between wars—this old walled city is quietly prosperous, making flour, cognac, leather goods, olive oil, soap, and liquorice, and its well-to-do citizens and traders sit comfortably at their favorite outdoor cafes sipping the excellent Chateau des Papes wine of the district, while planning a "deal" or figuring their profits on the last one. And they are pardonably proud of their branch of the Bank of France, their fine Calvet Museum, their schools, and their public library of 150,000 volumes. Pax vobiscum, Avignon!

I have always been glad that by some sudden impulse I decided to stay over that afternoon in order to visit by motorbus the ancient village of Vaucluse and its lovely pastoral environs—beloved by the poet Petrarch, where he retired for long periods when he felt the need of solitude for his creative work in literature. The drive of about 20 miles northeast of Avignon is through a region remarkable for its beauty and fertility, natural and cultivated—wooded cliffs, copious springs, clear rushing streams, forests, and open spaces rich in various grains, mulberry trees and olives.

After stopping for a breathing spell in the shady, quaint village of L'Isle-sur-la-Sorgue, with its running streams in every direction, we soon reached Vaucluse, with its tiled roofs and dense plane trees, set against one sloping wall of a deep cleft of gray granite, down which rush the clear waters of the river Sorgue, over long trailing water plants like jade-green serpents in constant motion. Leaving the other passengers taking refreshments at a little inn, I followed a footpath up the valley wall and just beyond the rim came upon the ruined shell of stone walls of what is locally known as Petrach's "castello," where he probably wrote much and where legend says the one visitor who was welcome to drop in at any hour unannounced was the poet's friend, Cardinal Phillipe de Cabassole. Solitary, silent, and sunlit, the little hill and its crumbling walls with delicate blooms growing from the crannies have remained for me a happy image to this day of Petrarch's love of solitude amid the friendlier aspects of Nature.

Walking on and descending into the valley I soon came upon the beautiful grotto under the rim of the rock wall out of which comes a great welling spring of crystal-clear water which spreads out into a shadowed blue pool, to disappear through the rocks below and emerge as the source of the river Sorgue mentioned above. Following the stream down a short distance I rested for a few minutes over a tall glass at a little bowered refreshment house perched on piles directly over the cool rushing waters and then returned to the village of Vaucluse. Here by way of contrast with my hour with Petrarch in the 14th century, I now saw along the lower reaches of the Sorgue a quarter mile of paper and cigarette mills. Thus does Time and Economics superimpose one upon another and upon Nature the typical stamps of different epochs.

But Petrarch had the last word. Directed by a kindly citizen I found the little "Musee de Petrarque." A small stone house in the shade of a cliff beside a small brook running into the Sorgue, this museum proved to be a second place where Petrarch had lived and worked. Arriving at the same moment was an attractive young woman I had noticed among the passengers in our autobus. We both smiled in recognition, I said something and found that she too was an American! What was more, she was an admirer of Petrarch. Together we entered and we looked at the fine first printed edition, under glass, of one of the poet's works, done by John Bale de Amerback and dated 1496. We could see only the two open pages—one of index, the other with the title in Latin, which I believe we translated together with little difficulty—and possibly correctly!—as "Rustic songs for twelve eclogues of the solitary life." We examined a few personal articles which may or may not have been the property of the poet, as claimed, and then decided we had better saunter toward our bus. In leaving we noted on the outer wall a pink terra cotta tablet containing a supposed likeness of Petrarch in bas-relief, framed with the laurel leaves so closely associated with him. Beneath was an inscription in French—and now my companion's cheeks glowed with the excitement of being able to put her college study to the test as she translated and—I am confident—correctly:

"Here Petrarch made an imporatal book and gave to the world the treasure of ancient letters.—Society of the Friends of Petrarch, 1927." This inscription may refer specifically to Petrarch's translation of Cicero's "Familiar Letters" which were discovered at Verona in 1345—one of the major literary events of that century. Petrarch, pax vobiscum!

Reddy Kilowatt knows his chickens
REDDY KILOWATT serves on the modern poultry farm with the same dependable efficiency as he does in your home. Reddy Kilowatt electricity eliminates much of the chance and guesswork which formerly contributed to the cost of producing poultry and eggs. Reddy helps hatch chicks in modern electric incubators, and "mothers" them in electric brooders with accurate, automatically regulated temperature . . . often at a cost of less than one-half cent per chick. No doubt about it—Reddy Kilowatt power, purchased from the Edison Company, has helped increase the production of better poultry at lower cost in Southern and Central California.

FIRE FLAMES

At this writing there is more than one dark cloud. The darkness of the sky can't compete with that one hanging around one of our pals, who is at this time confined to a hospital bed. Bob Babbit was suddenly reported sick and very much to the surprise of all, was taken to the Huntington Memorial hospital in Pasadena. The dark skies above only mean that we are having some of that weather which demands explanations to our newcomers. With Bob, we hope to see him at home soon. Every cloud has a silver lining.

The dampness we are now having certainly will reduce the fire hazard for a very short period. By the time this is printed, chances are that there will be no signs of having had rain. We must still be careful.

It has been rumored that Ray Penn, one of our "regulars," will soon be working in Sierra Madre. If the story has a real foundation, he will be with "Mac McIvor in the garage just east of "Andy's" service station.

We can look forward to a swell race when the fire alarm sounds. This race may compare with the one of years ago when Frank Lovell tried his best to outrun Milt Steinberger. According to his age, Andy Liscombe should come in second. He still vies that no "young squirt" is going to beat him to the fire trucks. Penn seldom resorts to braggadocio. When accosted on this race topic, he immediately took on an air of great superiority, and said that even though Andy would have a good start, he would beat him to the line. This will surely be of much interest.

Since the war, Ray Penn has been employed out of town in important war work. Several of the men have been occupied the same way. To have them back in Sierra Madre will mean strength to the fire department. One of the requirements of the department is that the applicant be employed in Sierra Madre. This, in order that he may be available at either day or night call. The war was the cause of many regulations being sidetracked.

Through this column, the Fire Chief wishes to express gratitutde for the very fine attitude the townsfolk are taking toward helping to clear up fire hazards. Folks are calling for inspection before burning is done. "This, said the Chief, will aid greatly in eliminating unwanted fires."

Just recently and after it had rained, the "Fire Marshal" was called to a rear yard to make an inspection. Everything was going along fine. On the way to his car the "Inspector" suddenly took on the appearance of one who might be afflicted with St. Vitus Dance. While standing atop and amid a thickness of eucaluptus leaves, he was visited by a large "bevy" of those sweet-smelling, hard-biting red ants. It surely must have been embarrassing to have to pull up the leg of his trousers in the presence of ladies, but if you have ever been bitten by these powerful insects, you will appreciate his predicament. It was most tempting to those present to snicker a little, but then again, they might want to burn their rubbish at another time.

The celebration of V-J Day might have been the cause of much embarrassment, had we had a fire immediately. After the exhaustion of all the air in the tanks by blowing of the horn it was discovered that the pumps were not replenishing it. This was caused by someone who, without much doubt, will hear from the assembly at the next firemen's meeting. Luck remains with us. When in anxiety, the men awaited the opportunity to give the "Peace Blast" of the old siren, it failed to work, much of the strain was pressed upon the "tooter." It did a swell job and now since peace has actually come, we'll forgive any other failures.

When such fires as could be seen from Sierra Madre occurred in distant hills, we realized just what can happen here. Our hills are as susceptible to fire as any in the hereabouts. It means much to us to keep them free from fire. Everything we can do to prevent is a precaution that cannot be measured in dollars and cents. Good sense will be a great preventive. Fires are like other accidents—they happen from the strangest things and in the most peculiar ways. And believe you me, they can also happen very quickly. Let's keep the FIRES OUT.

"OUTDOOR MEALS"

Whether the man of the house wears the apron in backyard cooking or whether the chief cook transfers her art from the kitchen to the outdoors, backyard meals are special occasions. Appetites are keyed up even greater when you take your family meal in the backyard or when you want to entertain guests in this easy summer style.

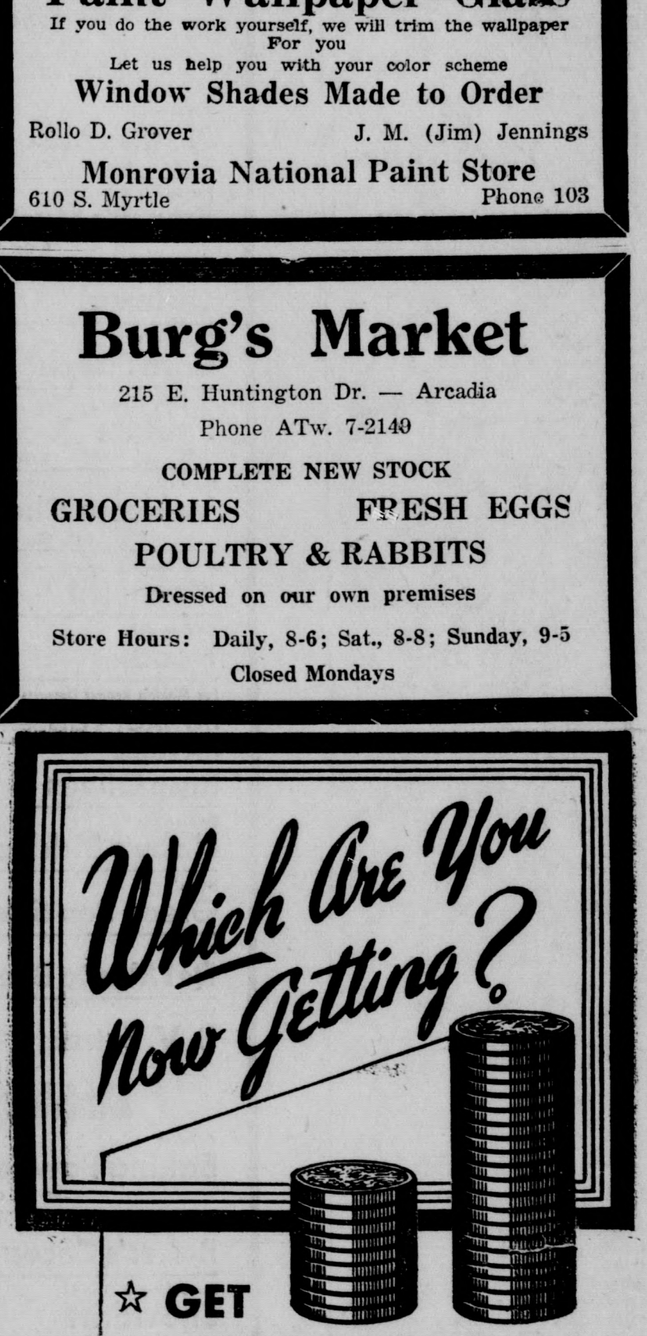

With an outdoor barbecue you can plan simple menus prepared entirely outside. Or the meal can be just as enjoyable without special equipment, just prepared in the kitchen and carried to that inviting spot outside where a table has been set with colorful tablecloths and pottery. Salad luncheons or suppers, with all of the food prepared well in advance, can be equally inviting.

"SUGAR SAVING SWEETS"

Mention the word sugar to any homemaker and a lively discussion on sugar stretching ideas is sure to follow. The ingenuity of the American housewife in this period of wartime food rationing is brought into evidence with the many practical sugar-saving tricks that give good results.

We now know how to make light-textured cakes using only a small amount of sugar. We can make a delicious fluffy icing with egg whites and corn syrup or honey that in many ways is superior to a sugar icing. We're bringing out grandmother's famous molasses recipes that are all-time favorites and save sugar, too.

Indeed home baking of delicious cookies and feather-like cakes need not be curtailed when such good results can be accomplished with sugar alternates and a small amount of sugar from the family sugar bowl.

VICTORY CAKE

- 2 c. cake flour
- 3 tsp. single action or 2 tsp. double action baking powder
- ¼ tsp. salt
- ½ c. fat
- ½ c. sugar
- ½ c. dark corn syrup
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- ⅔ c less 4 tbsp. milk
- 1 tsp. flavoring

Sift flour; measure; add baking powder and salt; sift together twice. Cream fat and sugar together. Add corn syrup slowly; then eggs. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk. Flavor. Bake at 375° 30-35 minutes. Makes two 8" layers. Ice with jelly or sugar-shy frosting.

JELLY ICING

- 1 c. red jelly
- 2 egg whites

Beat egg whites until stiff. Add jelly gradually and beat until smooth and stands in peaks. Red vegetable coloring may be added, if desired. Will frost two 8" layers.

Black Widow Menace Comes Early

Inquiries regarding the Black Widow spider menace are coming in earlier than usual, Dr. Roy O. Gilbert, assistant county health officer said, following a report of one person having been bitten on the forehead last week.

Sometimes called the Hourglass or Shoe Button spider, it is more commonly known as the Black Widow because of the female's habit of devouring her mate. She is readily identified by the bright red patch on the under side of her abdomen and her presence can be determined by the tough, irregular, three-dimensional web she spins. Thick leather gloves should be worn when working around old lumber, in garages or dark corners.

The health officer advised sulphur fumigation or a spider spray for eradication in the house, and a creosote spray for use in garages or outdoors.

Black Widow spider bites are seldom fatal but are extremely painful. In case of a bite, a physician should be consulted immediately.

Match Stand

A match stand is essential for large kitchen matches, and it's a good idea to put them in the stand with their heads down so that they can't ignite accidentally. Above all, see that matches are placed out of the reach of small children.
